

SHIKI

At Shiki, the four seasons are more than a passing of time — they are the soul of our culinary philosophy.

四季, Shiki — meaning “Four Seasons” in Japanese — reflects an enduring reverence for nature’s rhythms. Each season brings its own palette of flavours, textures, and aromas, inspiring our chefs to create dishes that honour both the moment and the timeless traditions of Japanese cuisine.

Our commitment begins with the finest seasonal produce, sourced from dedicated purveyors across Australia, Japan, and beyond. Just as the seasons evolve, so too does our menu — celebrating the vibrant awakening of 春, Haru (Spring), the sun-drenched abundance of 夏, Natsu (Summer), the layered richness of 秋, Aki (Autumn), and the quiet elegance of 冬, Fuyu (Winter).

At the heart of your dining experience is the artistry of authentic Japanese Teppanyaki. In this refined culinary theatre, precision meets creativity. Every movement, every ingredient, every plate is a tribute to craftsmanship — and to the beauty of impermanence that lies at the heart of Japanese culture.

Tonight, we invite you to experience Shiki — a journey through the four seasons, where every dish tells a story of nature, mastery, and true hospitality.

Sake

Honjozo

本醸造, Honjozo requires a rice polish of 70% - but the most defining aspect of these designated sakes is the addition of a small amount of brewer's alcohol. Far from being an indication of low quality, this highlights its delicate flavours.

FUKUI

Ippongi Denshin Winter Shiboritate Honjozo Namazake 150ml $38 300ml $70

■ Light & Sweet

This is the first batch produced at the start of the new brewing season, bottled and shipped unpasteurised immediately after pressing retaining its freshness and just-brewed aromas of orange and muscat. There is a sweetness on the tongue before the freshly-pressed sake cleanses the palate

Sake

Ginjo

吟醸, Ginjo roughly translates to “carefully selected brew” and require a higher amount of milling, which means higher costs and a (theoretically) better quality. These also have the addition of brewer’s alcohol.

NIIGATA

Hakkaisan Ginjo

300ml $59

■ Light & Sweet

Produced at a brewery covered by deep snow in the winter - this sake embodies the spirit of the clean, cold air during the winter season with its smooth and clean palate with low acidity. The added alcohol in this sake gives a more floral character to the nose and a touch of added richness to the body.

Daiginjo

Dai means “Great”, so 大吟醸, Daiginjo literally means “Great Ginjo”, which requires the rice to be milled to at least 50% of their original size.

Junmai Daijings are often considered the “best quality” sakes, and while from a technical standpoint that maybe true—it may be more beneficial to recognise them simply as a different expression of sake that is softer and more elegant than some more umami driven and rustic alternatives.

KYOTO

Kizakura 'S' Junmai Daiginjo

500ml $69

■ Light & Sweet

RP: 50%

According to the producer, the ‘S’ represents “special sake to enjoy slowly on Saturday and Sunday”. Medium-dry with a light palate of apples and bananas—this has been crafted to highlight the flavour of the Yamadanishiki rice.

Nigori

濁り酒, Nigori is unfiltered sake - meaning some rice particles are present in the final bottling giving it a wheat beer feel—it is cloudy to the eye and sweeter and creamier on the palette. Pairing aficionados should look towards Sushi, grilled seafoods and tempura during the meal, but the sweetness adds a nice compliment to desserts.

KYOTO

Kizakura Nigori Sake 300ml $32

Champagne and Sparkling Wine

Champagne may be the most famous and revered of all the wines. Chardonnay, Pinot Noir and Pinot Meunier are the only grape varieties permitted in wines that carry the Champagne name and must have undergone secondary fermentation in bottle.

While Champagne may be the king of sparkling wines, there are still many producers the world over that produce outstanding wines that provide great value. This also opens up many more exciting flavour profiles as winemakers are not restricted by law as to what grapes can be used in the production of these wines.

While in South Australia, trying a Sparkling Shiraz is always an interesting experience for the uninitiated.

White Wine

Aromatic Whites

These wines tend to exhibit, as the classification will hint towards, outstanding aromatic qualities. While not a definitive list Riesling, Gewürztraminer, Pinot Gris (or Grigio) and Müller-Thurgau are widely regarded to fall into this category. These wines tend to be somewhat ignored in favour of the more well-known varieties, but prove to be excellent when pairing with Asian foods.

Chardonnay

Originating in Burgundy, Chardonnay is now grown in almost all wine producing countries. By itself the Chardonnay has relatively neutral flavours, though it gains many of its trademark aromas from the terroir in which it is grown, and (most influentially) the use of oak in its production.

To experience Chardonnay in a truly terroir driven style, look to the unoaked “gunflint” examples from Chablis in France. To enjoy your Chardonnay to its fullest, we recommend drinking at 10 degrees centigrade, slightly warmer than you would most other white wines.

Red Wine

Pinot Noir

Considered by many to be the connoisseurs' varietal of choice due to its complexity and subtle nuances. Generally, one can expect a light to medium bodied wine with cherry and raspberry aromas, combined with other fresh red berries. This can be complimented by farmyard aromas, especially from Burgundian and aged examples.

Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot and Bourdeaux Varieties

One of the most well-known wine blends made famous by the wines of Bordeaux. In France, Cabernet Sauvignon and Merlot are often blended with Cabernet Franc to create some of the world's most famous, expensive and best wines. Each varietal is used the world over either as single varietal wines or blended to different degrees with styles varying between country, appellation and winemaker.

Shiraz and Rhône Varietals

If you ask those residing a stone's throw from here, South Australia is the Shiraz capital of the world – Local examples are known the world over to pack a punch as they do not hold back... one could say they are unapologetically in your face.

Shiraz (or Syrah) is a powerful and full-bodied varietal that generally exhibits black pepper, violet and dark berry notes. Aged examples of this varietal often start to take on more earthy flavours of truffle and leather. While stunning as a single varietal wine, Shiraz is particularly effective when used as a blending grape, as most notably seen in France's Rhône Valley where (in Châteauneuf-du-Pape) up to 13 grapes can be used in the blend.
